

‘Quick’ Mousakhkhan Pastries

Quantity: 30 people (one small pastry each, served as a starter with dips and condiments)

Ingredients:

- 1 kilo skinned and boneless chicken
- 1 cup Palestinian olive oil
- 8 onions, finely chopped
- 4 teaspoons summaa *
- 1 teaspoon sea salt
- ½ teaspoon black pepper
- 1 tablespoon Palestinian mixed spices *
- Juice of 1 small lemon or lime
- White vinegar for washing chicken
- ½ cup fried pine nuts
- 2 large shraak or marqouq flat and thin bread sheets *

Method:

- Wash chicken in cold water and rinse well
- Pour some white vinegar, rub well and allow to stand for 5 minutes
- Rinse with cold water and allow to rest for 5 minutes to get rid of excess water
- Cut chicken into long, thin slices and marinade with lemon juice, olive oil, salt, black pepper and mixed spices
- Allow to rest and start chopping and cooking the onions meanwhile
- Fry finely chopped onions with olive oil, then add summaa
- Slowly cook onions on a small fire and add a little water to allow them to cook thoroughly (whilst not caramelising them)
- Add fried/roasted pine nuts to the onion mix and cook for a few more minutes. Save some pine nuts for garnishing the dish just before serving
- Place chicken in a pre-heated saucepan, cover the lid and cook in its own marinade while shaking the saucepan every now and then
- Add 1 cup of boiling water to the chicken and cook until water dries off and chicken is ready
- Spread shraak bread and cut into tall pieces, making sure the width allows for cigar-like wrapping
- On every slice of shraak, spread some onion mix followed by chicken and an additional sprinkle of summaa
- Roll in cigar-shape or pastry
- Place in a lightly oiled baking tray and brush surface with olive oil
- Bake in medium-heat oven (around gas mark 4.5) for 5 minutes
- Allow to cool
- Serve cold on a large plate and garnish with a pinch of summaa and some fried/roasted pine nuts. Ideal with yoghurt and pumpkin dips on the side.

Notes:

1. Mixed thigh and breast chicken pieces are optimal, as thigh pieces will add to flavour and fibre. If difficult to source, stick to chicken breasts.
2. Use preferably halal chicken, if possible. If not, organic will do.
3. For a healthier option, use Palestinian olive oil only for spreading on the baking tray and for brushing on pastries. You can use healthier vegetable cooking oil and with half the amount as an alternative when cooking the onions.
4. Summaaqa (also known as sumac or sumaq) is made from the ground berries of a decorative bush that grows in the Middle East and around the Mediterranean. Make sure it is fresh and purple in colour. Some supermarkets stock brick-coloured and not-so-fresh summaaqa. Avoid this, as the resulting purple colouring of the fried onions is the trademark of this dish. Fresh summaaqa also tastes better because of its fruity and astringent quality that enhances the overall taste.
5. Ingredients of Palestinian mixed spices vary, but most people use a mixture of allspice, cinnamon, dried garlic, cardamom and cloves. Proportions may vary according to preference of taste.
6. For a healthier option, roast pine nuts on a frying pan under the grill (whilst shaking regularly) instead of frying.
7. You can add homemade bouquet garni to the chicken saucepan for enhanced flavouring. This normally contains mastic gum granules, cardamom pods, cloves, coriander seeds, black pepper, cumin seeds, dried chillies, a bay leaf and a cinnamon stick, all wrapped in a muslin cloth (could be brought in ready on the day, provided they are delivered during preparation time). *
8. Make sure shraak bread is of good quality. We need to work out the best way to provide this on the day. I could bring some with me, but they might not be fresh and would be difficult to fill and wrap. Can the sous-chef suggest anything similar? *
9. Mousakhkhan is the traditional Palestinian dish; it is eaten in all areas of pre-1948 Palestine with some regional variations. In Nazareth and the Galilee it is called muhammar. Both names are pronounced im-sakhkhan and im-hammar in Palestinian dialect. Both names mean the 'heated' or 'baked' or 'grilled' dish.
10. The above recipe may seem laborious at first, but it is still much easier than preparing the dish as a main course, with all the ingredients and whole chickens baked in the oven. If all preparatory stages are done before the demonstration hour, all that needs to be done in front of the audience is assembly, quick baking, allowing to cool and serving. In short, the chef will need to prepare a considerable amount before the demonstration. Please advise if this is possible.
11. This 'easier' recipe also allows mousakhkhan to be served as a cold starter with cooling accompanying dips. This is crucial in hot summer months. Serving an icy cold drink, like rose punch for example is the ideal sweet accompaniment.

Original recipe source: Afyouni, I. F. The Home Cooked Dish, al-Wataniyya Press, Amman, Jordan, 2002

Pumpkin Moutabbal Dip

Quantity: 5-10 people (using bread pieces and/or mousakhkhan pastries to dip)

Ingredients:

- 1 kilo pumpkin
- ½ cup lemon or lime juice
- 4 cloves of garlic
- ½ tablespoon sea salt
- ½ cup tahini sesame paste
- ½ bunch continental parsley
- Palestinian olive oil for garnish
- Pinch of cumin (if desired)

Method:

- Peel, de-seed and cut pumpkin into small pieces
- Cook in boiling water for 40 minutes
- Drain well until cold. Press with hand to remove excess water
- Blend in food processor, add tahini paste and mix well
- Crush garlic with salt and add lemon/lime juice
- Add garlic crush to pumpkin mix and stir well
- Place in dip bowl and garnish with some chopped parsley, some olive oil and a pinch of cumin
- Serve with Arabic flat bread and homemade harissa. *

Notes:

1. You can replace pumpkin with butternut squash, making sure you drain well in both cases.
2. Moutabbal is pronounced im-tabbal in Palestinian dialect. It means the ‘spiced’ or ‘well-flavoured’ dip.
3. Whilst we are on the subject of dips with tahini, the word hummous is the Arabic name of the chickpea pulse and not the dip itself. The correct name for a chickpea dip would therefore be ‘chickpea moutabbal’ or ‘hummous moutabbal’ to be more exact.

Original recipe source: Kamal S. & Yassine S.O. Palestinian Cooking, Dar El Ilm Lilmalayin, Beirut, Lebanon, 2004

Rose Punch with Pine Nuts & Rose Petals

Quantity: 5-10 drinking glasses (depending on glass size and concentration of syrup)

Ingredients:

- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup water
- Juice of ½ lemon or 1 lime
- 2 drops pink food colouring *
- 2 drops edible pure rose essence *
- ½ cup rose water *
- ½ cup pine nuts soaked in water
- Dried rose petals *
- Crushed ice or ice cubes

Method:

- Place water, sugar and lemon/lime juice on medium heat and stir until sugar dissolves
- Leave to boil for 5 minutes, then remove off heat
- Add pink food colouring, rose essence and rosewater
- Place syrup in the fridge and allow to cool
- Use 1/3 part syrup to 2/3 parts water to dilute into a drink
- Add crushed ice or ice cubes per glass
- Add soaked pine nuts and some rose petals for garnish (optional)

Notes:

1. Once again, if syrup is prepared beforehand, it should not take time during the demonstration.
2. To make sure that 50 people try the punch, mix water with syrup in the right proportions in a large punch bowl, using small paper cups for the audience to try.
3. Rose petals and soaked pine nuts could be placed in a small bowl as an optional addition to individual drinking cups.

Original recipe source: Kamal S. & Yassine S.O. Expanded ABC Cooking, Dar El Ilm Lilmalayin, Beirut, Lebanon, 1993

Edited & translated by: Reem Kelani

* Ingredients will be provided by the artist on the day